West Wind is a privately owned company originally established in 1983 to provide corporate air charter service. West Wind has evolved from humble beginnings into a dynamic growing organization which included a noteworthy alliance with our First Nations partners. The purchase of West Wind shares by Meadow Lake Tribal Council and Prince Albert Grand Council was a significant development in the history of aviation in the province. Today West Wind operates a fleet of 25 aircraft, employs in excess of 250 people and operates out of bases in Saskatoon and Regina, as well as various satellite locations in northern Saskatchewan. West Wind's commitment to the resource sector of northern Saskatchewan has been a major contributing factor to its growth. West Wind is western Canada's largest full-support aviation company with its head office located in Saskatoon.
